Deaths-Funerals

25/4/47 MRS. K. N. STORMS

WILTON—Burial took place in the family plot at Wilton Cemetery on Friday afternoon of Rosabelle Shibley, widow of the late Korah N. Storms. Funeral service was held at the Cullen funeral home in Kingston. Rev. A. M. Laverty officiated.

The deceased was born near Wilton nearly 73 years ago, a daughter of the late Byard Shibley and Victoria Storms. She spent most of her life in the Wilton district, with the exception of her late years. Following the death of her husband in 1927, she spent some time in Walkerville, later returning to Kingston and Wilton, and for the last few years had resided in Kingston.

She was a member of the United Church and Order of the Eastern Star. She was a talented musician and was a charter member of the Wilton Women's Institute. She taught music to many around Wilton.

She was twice married, her first husband being Charles Neilson. Surviving from this marriage are a daughter, Mrs. Harry Stuart (Dorothy) of Kingston, and a son, Shibley Neilson of Walkerville. Also surviving is a brother, Percy Shibley of Cataraqui, and two grandsons, William and Robert Neilson.

Pall-bearers were A. E. Peters, William Morrow, W. Payne and W. B. Storms of Kingston, J. E. Miller and Robert Asselstine of Wilton.

FRED STORMS

YARKER — The funeral of Fred Storms was held from his late residence on Wednesday afternoon, and after the service the remains were taken to the Wilton Cemetery for interment. The service was conducted by his minister, Rev. W. S. Smart, who spoke words of comfort to the bereaved. Feb. 5, 1938

The death of Mr. Storms came as a shock to his wide circle of friends in this district. Exceptionally well known and very highly esteemed, he had been confined to his bed for only a few days although his health had not been good for about a year. His many friends did not realize that his passing was so close at hand.

He was a son of Ruggles Storms and Margaret McEwen and was born in Wilton in the year 1858. When a young man 19 years of age, he commenced his trade in his home village and in 1909 came to Yarker where he was employed for a number of years in the foundry. Later he resumed his former occupation of blacksmithing. For a few years he drew mail but gave this up about a year ago.

In 1877 he was united in marriage to Miss Sarah Davy of Camden East and of this marriage eight children were born, namely Oscar and Fred Storms now of Syracuse, Ruggles Storms of Winnipeg, Otto Storms of Belmar, N.J., Mrs. R. J. Barrosse of New Orleans, Mrs. J. A. McColl of Toronto, a daughter Malville who died in 1916, and a son Maitland who died in 1930. Mrs. Storms passed away in 1900 and later Mr. Storms was united in marriage to Miss Anna Stewart of Wilton who survives. After his second marriage Mr. and Mrs. Storms moved to Yarker which has been their home since that time.

For many years the deceased was a member of Rapid Lodge I.O.O.F., and was a life-long member of the Methodist (now United) church. In politics he was a staunch Conservative and took a keen interest in political affairs in the province and Dominion. He was known for his sterling character and his friends were many.

In addition to Mrs. Storms and members of the family, six in number, he leaves to mourn his loss two brothers, M. G. Storms of Kingston and W. B. Storms of Wilton and a sister, Mrs. Sperry Shibley of Wilton.

The funeral was in charge of the Odd Fellows and assisting in the service were W. F. Barrett of Napanee, district deputy grand master, and Norman Boyce of Colebrook, P.D.D.-G.M. Mrs. Clinton Smith, Miss Pauline Buck and Mr. Knight sang. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

The pall-bearers were Harold Freeman, Clinton Smith, Alex Riddle, Edgar Walker, Wellie Murphy and Ellwood Holland.

Those from a distance were Mrs. J. A. McColl of Toronto, Otto Storms of Belmar, N.J., and Oscar and Fred Storms of Syracuse.

pronouncement, and its nature will concern the minds of Germany and the world during the next fortnight.

Whatever Hitler may reveal of his immediate plans when the Reichstag meets, one thing already is apparent —the swift events, following War Minister Marshal Werner von Blomberg's resignation because the army considered his carpenter's daughter bride "socially impossible," have removed conservative generals from position where they might act as brakes.

Danzig Threatened?

There were circumstantial indications that Hitler might proclaim to the Reichstag that Germany was taking Danzig under her sovereignty. (The town of Danzig and surrounding territory was made a free city by the Treaty of Versailles.)

It was possible also that Hitler would announce formally that Germany regarded herself as protector of German minorities everywhere. Return of German colonies and the Nazification of Austria also are known German aims, but definitely when and how Hitler may press for their realization is not yet apparent.

It seems safe to assume, however, that there has ended the season of "no further surprises" announced by the Fuehrer in his Reichstag speech of Jan. 30, 1937, and that there has begun a period of activity in furthering foreign and domestic policy.

By the decrees announced yesterday, the dyed-in-the-wool Nazi von Ribbentrop, a mysterious resident of Ottawa in pre-war days, replaces the elderly and conservative Baron Konstantin von Neurath, who becomes chairman of the new secret Cabinet Council to advise on foreign affairs.

Today, Hitler himself, not a general raised in the old army traditions, is in direct control of the nation's armed forces, with a sort of deputy warlord carrying out the Fuehrer's instructions under the title "chief of the high command."

The "deputy" is Wilhelm Keitel, former state secretary in the war ministry, who attains to Cabinet rank.

Deposes von Fritsch

The Fuehrer deposed as chief of staff Gen. Werner von Fritsch, who forced the crisis by demanding von Blomberg resign, and named Walther von Brauchitsch, made colonel-general, has been commander of the motorized divisions of the Army.

As part of the general shakeup, Herman Wilhelm Goering, Nazidom's No. Two man, announced reorganization of the ministry of economics—one more step toward Nazification of

Cressy Man Found Dead In His Barn

Byron Storms Had Been in Ill-health for Some Time —Had Written Letter to Brother

Dec. 1938

PICTON, Dec. 13—Byron Storms, a farmer residing at Cressy, was found dead, hanging from a beam in his barn, Monday morning. According to Coroner Dr. D. S. Lighthall, he was advised that the deceased had arisen at six o'clock and gone to the barn to do the chores. Previous to that he had written a letter to his brother asking him to send for the doctor, as he did not feel well. When he did not return to the house and investigation was made, it was discovered that he had climbed up a ladder to a beam, put the rope around his neck and then jumped from the ladder.

Storms was unmarried and 45 years of age. He had resided in that community all his life. He had been in ill-health for some time.

Dear Readers: Here are two fine designs that I know will find immediate favor in any household. There is a friendly "realness" about them that is going to appeal particularly to the masculine taste, so if you are looking for a couple of cushions for the den or recreation room, here is just the thing. OLD DIRCK'S BOOK: a brief account of the life and times of Dirck Storm of Holland, by Raymond W. Storm. 1949. 7 x 9, cloth, lithoprinted, portraits, illustrations, facsimis., maps (in color), pp. 402. No price stated. Address: the compiler, 2500 Park Avenue, New York 51, N. Y.

This attractive volume is devoted to an account of the descendants of Dirck Storm who, accompanied by his wife and three children, came to New Netherland from the town of Oss (Osch) in Brabant, Netherlands, in 1662. This pioneer became a man of standing in the various communities where he resided, acting as precentor, teacher, secretary and, while in Tarrytown, N. Y., keeper of the early records of the famous Sleepy Hollow Dutch Church.

The author has traced the history of the family from its arrival on these shores in a most comprehensive manner—sketching it against both the historical events of the times and the local background of its members successive places of residence—New Amsterdam, Brooklyn, Flatbush, Bedford, Tappan, Tarrytown, and in Dutchess County. The series of biographies, with their wealth of intimate detail, make most interesting reading and include references to many of the old Dutchess County families with whom the Storms intermarried. These accounts will be cherished by every living descendant of the pioneers.

An important year in the history of the family was 1739, when Thomas Storm, grandson of Dirck, bought a large tract of land in the Rumbout Patent in Dutchess County, near Fishkill; during the succeeding years this holding was to develop into the beloved homestead, "Lake Farm" on Storm lake, which ever since has been the center of the family life so charmingly recounted by the compiler.

Illustrated with many portraits, maps, and reproductions of old documents, the book should be a source of pleasure, to both direct and collateral descendants, by telling the vicissitudes of their forebears as well as their substantial and successful community lives. The work is well-conceived; by placing in the Appendix the purely genealogical matter, to which has been added considerable data relative to the allied families, the compiler has made the perusal of the story itself much more interesting for the average reader. He is to be congratulated with the results which point to painstaking study and research.

The reviewer regrets, however, that he cannot bestow the same praise on that part of the work dealing with the Old World ancestry of the Storm family. On page 37, the compiler quotes what is supposed to be the entry on the passenger list relating to the immigrant: "Dirck Storm, Junr., of Leyden, Holland, aged 32, his wife Maria van Montfoort of Leyden; their sons Gregorius, Peter, and David aged 6, 4, and 1½ years." Reference is given as O'Callaghan's Documentary History of New York, v.3, p.52. On referring to this source we find this entry on page 60: "Dirck Storm from the Mayory of Bosch, and wife and three children." Turning to the early passenger lists as published in the Holland Society Year Book, 1902, p.22, we find among the arrivals on D'vos (The Fox), under date of Aug. 31, 1662: "Dirck Storm from the Mayory of Bosch with wife and three children, 6, 4, and 1¼ yrs. old."

The difference between the compiler's statement and the other two records is obvious. There is no mention of "Junr." (never used in Holland at that time), no mention of Leyden, no age for Dirck, and no reference to the name of his wife; only the ages of the children are given, not their names. Furthermore, the place of their origin is not indicated as Leyden but as "Mayory of Bosch," which is the district around Bois-le-Duc in Brabant, Netherlands. From an entry on the membership list of the Dutch Church in Brooklyn May 13, 1670, it is evident that Dirck Storm came from Oss, a small town in the Mayorate, or Freedom (Vrijheid), of Bois-le-Duc (HSYB, 1897, p.136).

In my study of the origin of Dutch emigrants prior to 1700, extending over a period of twenty years, I have found that such place indications in passenger lists, marriage entries, and church-membership records, refer in practically all instances to the place of birth of the individual concerned. The assumption that Leyden was Dirck's birthplace is probably in error as, from the quoted entry, it follows that it was Oss.

There is an excellent article on the Dutch Storm family in Heraldieke Bibliotheek, 1873, p.128, to be found in the New York Public Library, wherein it is stated that Dirck Storm and Alida van Cortenbosch, the presumed parents of the settler, had no son named Dirck. The reviewer has checked with Leyden and confirmed the fact that no such son was baptized there. I also have information from Bar-le-Duc that there is no marriage entry in their records for Dirck Storm and Marietje Pieters (Montfoort), although the compiler states on p.38 that the marriage took place May 13, 1655, at St. Margaret's Church. If this entry can be verified it should also give the place of birth of Dirck, the groom.

In the church records of Oss, under date of Apr. 24, 1661, the baptism of Petronella Storm, daughter of Dirck, is entered but indicates that her father's name was Dirck Gorisz (Gregorisz) Storm. Hence Dirck was the son of one Gorisz Storm and not the son of Dirck, which would have enabled him to be cited as Dirck Junior.

One more reference will be in order. From the Genealogical Magazine of New Jersey, v.3, p.11 (1927): "Carel de Beauvois was secretary of the town of Breuckelen on Long Island [now Brooklyn, N. Y.], which position he held until his death in 1662, when he was succeeded by Dirck Gorisen Storm, better known as Dirck Storm."

The above observations prove that the pedigree outlined in the book under review is incorrect and, I may add, that there is no indication whatever that Dirck Gorisz Storm belonged to the well-known Delft-Leyden Storm family.

~~LIST OF DIRECT DESCENDANTS OF THE DE ROSSET FAMILY, with introduction and brief notes by Ludlow Potter Strong. 1948. 6 x 9. flexible binding, index, pp. 48. No price stated. Address: the compiler, 17 East 96th Street, New York 28, N. Y.~~

Annals of the de Rossets published in 1906 dealt with the Huguenot immigrants of the surname to the province of North Carolina, early in the eighteenth century, and the present work, which has been in preparation for ten years, was compiled to supplement it.

Armand¹ de Rosset (1695-1760), the original emigrant who came to Wilmington, North Carolina about 1735, had a son Moses John² de Rosset (1726-1767), whose issue, Armand³ de Rosset II (1767-1859), was the father of the subject of this genealogy, John⁴ de Rosset III (1807-1897).

The direct line of descent of the eleven children of the latter by his first wife, Eliza Jane Lord, is undertaken with brief sketches and footnotes to expand the bare vital statistics of the seven sons and four daughters of their progeny.

BRAXTON BRAGG COMER; HIS FAMILY TREE FROM VIRGINIA'S COLONIAL DAYS, by Anne Kendrick Walker. 1947. 7 x 10, cloth, frontispiece, plates, portraits, facsimiles, index, pp. 364. Price $10.00. Address: the compiler, Eufaula, Alabama.

This treatise confines itself to a history of the Comer family in the Southern States and is compiled, basically, from the archives of Georgia and Alabama, with excursions into similar sources in Virginia, in relation to the emigrant ancestor. It includes, according to bibliographical references, a comprehensive and detailed search of all relevant vital statistics, census, probate and land grant files in these areas, as well as tombstone and Bible records; in other words the author's research has been very exhaustive, and was not confined to extant printed books alone. She has published, therefore, a story which is factual, although the genealogical content is minor to the main theme of the work. Upwards of seventy individuals are listed under "Acknowledgements," which further indicates the scope of the project.

The first Comer noted is Samuel who married Elizabeth Moss, a daughter of James and Rebecca (King) Moss, who came to Virginia about 1719. This Samuel Comer, son of John, was born in Lunenburg County, Virginia, but the time of the arrival of his parents in this country is obscure. Three sons of Samuel and Elizabeth (Moss) Comer migrated from Virginia to Georgia prior to 1800, and the narrative concerns itself with the descendants of the youngest brother, Hugh Moss Comer, in both male and female lines. These include, naturally, Braxton Bragg Comer, a leading citizen, churchman, and industrialist, as well as governor, of Alabama, to whom the book is dedicated; among others who also find a place are Clement Comer Clay, an earlier chief executive of the same state, and Clement Claiborne Clay, a United States senator.

A worthy setting has been chosen to embody the chronicle; not only is it bound handsomely, but the selection of type for the text and the high quality of paper and illustrations, represent an outlay in excess of the cost of current historical works of similar import.

HISTORY OF THE PIONEERS OF THE MOSCOW DISTRICT.

Joseph Foster, U. E.

The STORMS Families at MOSCOW.

Two members of this family were pioneer settlers at Moscow, Nelson and Miles Storms. They were born in the Township of Ernesttown and descendants of a well and favorably known family of that Municipality, known in the early days as "The Second Town."

Nelson Storms, the eldest of the Storms Brothers, was educated at the Kingston Grammar School and taught School for some time in his native Township and later graduated from a Pharmaceutical Institution and opened a Drug Store in the City of Kingston where he continued until failing health necessitated his retirement. He was a great sufferer from rheumatism or neuritis and used crutches for walking.

Nelson Storms married Anna M. Clark, daughter of Robert Clark, a pioneer settler of Moscow and grandson of Colonel Robert Clark of the Royal Engineering Corps, who built the first Grist Mill in Upper Canada, on the Cataraqui River at Kingston Mills. Nelson Storms had two sons, William and Fred. Fred died at fifteen years of age and William removed to Manitoba, in the early days of the settlement of that New Province. Nelson Storms had a fine education and was able to do considerable clerical work following his removal to Moscow and for many years was Secretary of the Moscow Cheese Factory.

Miles Storms was one of Moscow's leading citizens. He combined farming with the contracting, building and undertaking business and was a master mechanic. His wife was Elizabeth Benn, daughter of John Benn. They had three sons and one daughter: Cephas, Elgin, Edward, Adelia.

S m. 25.3.1879 Willine, da. Lyman Huffman, of Portland.

Miles Storms of Moscow and John Gibbard of Napanee were the first undertakers in the County and Miles Storms became the first Sir Christopher Wren of the Midland District, having built most of the churches in this area, which stand to day as noble monuments of his outstanding craftsmanship.

Miles Storms and his wife Betsy were great folks and people who never grew old. They were genial hosts and welcome visitors and their presence at either a social or religious gathering always produced an animated and electric atmosphere. They resided in a stately stine residence and lived to an advanced age. They died within a few days of each other and were buried together in one grave, in the Family plot in the well-situated Moscow Cemetery.

Stanley, son of Edward Amey and Sarah Potter, learned the carriage making trade with his uncle, Daniel Burdett of Newburgh, and later went to Chicago, where he and his brother-in-law, Elgin Storms, began business as building contractors. Stanley married Julia Huffman, grand daughter of Peter Huffman who settled at Moscow in 1826.

LOYALIST CLARKS AND BADGLEY'S.

Estelle Clark Watson.

p. 276

We are indebted to Mr. Claude V. Asselstine of Calgary (whose wife was a Storms) for most of the following Storms outline. He also has further information about the family.

Gilbert STORMS, the Loyalist from Saratoga, N. Y., who had served under Burgoyne and then continued through the Revolution in Jessup's Corps, settled in Ernest Town, Upper Canada, as did his two sons, Henry and Jacob. All three were on the old "U. E. List."

Henry's wife was Jemima (-----), and they lived at Marysburgh. She died in Aug., 1789 (Ont. Hist. Soc. Papers & Records, I 60). Possibly he married again and had a son John, b. Jan. 1, 1796, who m. Elizabeth Hogle, b. July 13, 1798. Their children (Storms):

1. Ann, b. Mar. 25, 1821; m. Henry Aney. They had a son David, who had at least sons William and Ira. (See Index of Badgley section for Loyalist Anneys)
2. Miles, b. Aug. 7, 1822.
3. Sheldon, b. ----- (Jeptha Hawley also had a son Sheldon--rather unusual for a first name, so perhaps related? Daniel Sheldon m. Jennet Fairfield).
4. Anson, b. July 17, 1825.
5. Henry, b. Aug. 29, 1828; m. Jan. 15, 1859 Phebe Jane Peters. They had at least Bertha A. Storms, b. Apr. 20, 1860, who m. 1883 Matthew Davidson Asselstine, and had Wroy D., Pearle M., Cyril F., and Alice E. (See index)
6. Nelson, b. Sept. 16, 1832, d. 1880; m. Aug. 31, 1856 Ann Amelia Clark, b. 1831, d. 1925, great-granddaughter of Robert Clark. They had at least Wildord Phinley Storms (who m. Ella Walker, dau. of William and Amanda (Storms) Walker (See Clark section again) and Frederick Whitney Storms.
7. Norman, b. Oct. 16, 1836.

Jacob Storms married Rebeckah Sager. Their son Gilbert was baptized in 1803 by the Rev. Robt. McDowall. Some Gilbert Storms and wife Mary More had a son, Wm. Anderson, baptized in 1807 by the same minister. (Was this Gilbert a younger brother of Jacob?) (Ont. Hist. Soc. Papers & Records, I 97-8).

Our informant said that Jacob Storms had a son George who had at least:

1. John, who m. Fanny Gooseberry (see Clark section).
2. George, who m. Margaret Brown. It was their daughter Amanda who m. Wm. Walker, above.
3. James, m. Deborah Hicks.
4. Abraham, who m. ----- Gordon.
5. Amanda S., who m. ----- Leeman.

We do not know how the above Storms family was related to Jeremiah Storms whose record is found in Mrs. Waywell's "Genealogy Exchange." Perhaps Jeremiah was another son of Gilbert Storms, U. E. The record is as follows:

Storms, Jeremiah, m. Mrs. Mary Lloyd Feb. 19, 1792. (A Mrs. Lloyd also m. Geo. Fraser.)

Claude Vincent Asselstine, b. Violet, Ont., Dec. 31, 1888; m. Wilton, Nov. 1, 1916, Florence Beatrice Storms, of Wilton. Claude, a graduate of Queen's University, was a high school teacher in Calgary, Alta., until his retirement in June, 1953. His wife, Beatrice, is a descendant of the Loyalist, Gilbert Storms, formerly of Saratoga, Albany Co., N. Y. He was a native of America; had joined Burgoyne, and then served through the Revolution in Jessup's Corps. He was a witness before the Loyalist Commissioners in Montreal for Lewis Hicks, Simon Snider, and Nicholas Amey, all of whom had been neighbors of his at Saratoga. Gilbert Storms and his two sons, Henry and Jacob, of Ernesttown, were all on the old "U. E. List."
 Beatrice is descended through Jacob's son George. His son John married Fanny Gooseberry, and had a son Lemuel, who married Zelpha Freeman. Their ~~daughter~~ son Orange married Mary Parrott, and it was their daughter Beatrice who married Claude V. Asselstine. They live at 1770 First Ave., N. W., Calgary. Their only child (Asselstine):

Dear Mr Burleigh:

No doubt you will think strange me writing to you, but I was told you could give me the family tree of the Storms family.

I am very interested in this as my mother was Matheline or Kate Storm married Agnes Bell. (Ari was her father)

My son is 15 & is trying to get all he can of his family tree. If you could help me with this I would appreciate hearing from you. Since my mother died when I was 16 I did not hear from her youngest son. I didn't expect to hear from mother about it.

Please excuse this writing as my hands are crissed with arthritis this isn't easy to copy with at 37 but I manage. I am a widow with 4 children.

I guess the rest of my family know you at least Ken does
So I would appreciate this if you could give me any information on it.

Thank you

OTTAWA (CP) — Representatives of 150,000 employees of the federal government were to express their reaction at a press conference today to the government's refusal of an immediate general pay increase.

Finance Minister Fleming announced late Tuesday following a conference with heads of civil service employee groups that the government's financial position will not permit the added cost of an increase this fiscal year ending March 31.

The civil servants, including members of the armed forces and the RCMP, had no immediate comment. In recent months they have asked for increases averaging about 10 per cent, but had demanded a reply one way or the other from the government.

Mr. Fleming emphasized that the decision does not affect consideration of pay increases for particular employee categories, which are reviewed regularly.

The civil servants received their last general increase, averaging six per cent, May 1, 1957. Earlier this year the civil service commission — the government's personnel office — recommended general increases retroactive to Oct. 1 which Mr. Fleming estimated would cost the government $242,000,000 in the current year after contributions to superannuation and pension funds were boosted to cover the higher salaries.

This amount is equivalent to the yield from an increase of 15 per cent in personal income tax, he said. It would "very seriously upset the budget."

He noted that since the Second World War there have been seven general wage increases for the civil service, ranging between six and 10 per cent each time.

He said the government hopes to introduce a plan early next year under which the government will contribute to the cost of medical and surgical care of civil service members, those of the armed forces and the RCMP, and their dependents.

Industry Story of Strike Is Asked by Federal Board

It says there is plenty of steel — with nearly 15 per cent of the industry not affected by the strike, plus some imports — to take care of essential needs and prevent harm to the country's health and safety.
